Jim - What we are saying is on June 22, 2011 these comments become directive as long as the LWG agrees to provide us a status report by June 8. So, if the LWG agrees to provide us a status report by June 8, but doesn't want to incorporate certain comments, then those comments become directive on June 22 and they would have 2 weeks following that date to initiate dispute. It is both Chip and my expectation that if there are certain comments that the LWG does not believe should be incorporated into the draft FS, there should be an attempt to resolve them informally between now and June 22.

Let us know if you need further clarification.

Subject: Clarification on Dispute Deadline for EPA Comments on FS Tools Memos

Chip and Kristine:

Per my voice mail that I left with Chip this morning, with respect to the paragraph in your April 27 letter regarding the timeline for dispute resolution, we just want to confirm that those deadline extensions apply whether or not we ultimately agree to incorporate the comments into the Feasibility Study, so long as we provide the requested status report by June 8.

Thanks,

Jim McKenna
